NO COMPROMISE ON WAR ISSUE!

Business Talks Recovery Through Principle Which It Opposes in Practice

It is important to note that the principles discussed in the text are opposed to the practice of business recovery. The text highlights the need for a principled approach to recovery, emphasizing the importance of addressing the underlying issues that contribute to economic challenges. The text suggests that focusing on principles rather than compromising on them is crucial for sustainable and equitable recovery.
DIVIDING THE WEALTH

The top one-half of one per cent of the nation's population, the real owners of the upper crust, collected nearly 10 per cent of the $5 billion in taxes in the year 1935-36. Their share of the local consumer income was also equal, or about won out by the accidents of war and the inflation of the population in that year. The lowest seventh, or the group of four million, had incomes of less than $200 per year. The group, composed of one billion dollars in wealth, and the lowest seventh, or the group of four million, had incomes of less than $200 per year. The group, composed of one billion dollars in wealth, and the four million in the lowest seventh, was paid 10 per cent of the total consumer income. The chief concern of the Chamber of Commerce is the fear of starvation, the chief concern of the Chamber of Commerce is the fear of starvation. Having been successful, more or less legally, with a great opportunity. The danger is directly threatened, the time is ripe for another major revolution in world markets -now taking place in the year 1935-36. The group, composed of one billion dollars in wealth, and the four million in the lowest seventh, was paid 10 per cent of the total consumer income. PREPARATION

It is often asserted that workers are not prepared to take over industries in which they work. That is, they went through a period of unemployment and were not prepared to take over industries in which they work. Act to Hold or Improve Conditions

A SINGLE day's strike action by a few hundred textile employees here has set a new pattern in labor relations in this part of New England. With the passage of the four hour day, the strike might have been averted. But the long strike has been averted also. The granting of the four hour day has replaced the old antagonism of the past by a spirit of cooperation and understanding between labor and capital. It is the spirit of brotherhood that has been revived, and the workers are determined to hold on to it.

More every morn, a more despairing effect on the stock market than the prospects of a war. The stock market is now in a state of prostration, and the outlook for the future is still more discouraging.
This prospect in turn brings a plunge.

The crisis in the stock market is not the only one that is now affecting the world. The world is in a state of war, and the future of the United States is in the balance. The United States is on the verge of a war, and the future of the United States is in the balance.
