By GEORGE H. SHOAP

Despite the depression of the working classes and their apparent lack of energy, this is to me the time for great social programs to be dispatched, rather is it a time for waiting and remissiveness by evryling, student of economics to the great wealth of the world's wealth.

THE CRISIS OF CAPITALISM

The Industrial Workers of the World (IWW) or the Wobblies were a radical labor organization that formed in 1905. They sought to organize workers in favor of class struggle and direct action against capitalism. The IWW was known for its small, local unions and its opposition to the traditional labor movement. The group was active in a variety of industries, including mining, lumber, and transportation. The IWW was involved in various strikes and protests, including the著名的 Pullman Strike in 1894 and the Battle of Seattle in 1919. The organization was also known for its colorful language and its tendency to engage in confrontational tactics. It was eventually suppressed by federal law enforcement in the early 1920s.
